

CUMMINS AND HUGHES LEAD

Each Said to Be Choice of G. O. P. in Three States

TWO STATES LIKE SENATOR WEEKS

Root Also Favored in the Canvas of Republican Chairmen

New York, Nov. 29.—The World yesterday printed the following:

In order to ascertain the sentiment in the various states The World sent a telegram to the chairmen of each of the Republican state committees, asking them to wire their opinion as to whom their state favored for the presidential nomination.

Of the 48 chairmen, 27 responded. According to the chairmen who responded Justice Hughes of the United States supreme court and Senator A. H. Cummings of Iowa lead. Ex-Senator Elihu Root is named by three of the chairmen, but an analysis of the replies indicates that Senator Cummings is regarded as possessed of the greatest strength.

This is undoubtedly because of the geographical location of his home and from the fact that Republicans generally believe that Justice Hughes will not be a candidate nor permit the use of his name. This belief was strengthened when he refused to allow his name to be placed on the Nebraska primary ballot.

In none of the replies received by The World was the name of Gov. Whitman of New York mentioned. The same applies to Gov.-elect Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts, which state and many others have "favorite sons."

Senator Cummings, besides having the support of his own state of Iowa, is popular in Minnesota and Montana. Justice Hughes, while not being urged by New York, is named in Minnesota, Oregon and Vermont, while Elihu Root is strongly supported in Minnesota, Vermont and New Mexico.

The old-line "standpat" Republicans are inclined to favor Root and Hughes, while the states having Progressive tendencies advocate Cummings.

While ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton is the favorite son of Ohio, his candidacy is not regarded with great favor in many sections, because of the legislation enacted while he was chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the House, Michigan's favorite is Gov. Chase Osborn. Ex-Vice-Pres. Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana is popular in Kentucky and in his own state.

The Republicans of the various states apparently want a man from the Middle West, hoping with such a candidate to bring back many of the Progressives who deserted in 1912.

Here are the candidates mentioned by

$1,000 TO "CONVERT" WILSON.

Wondering About Best Way to Use Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's Gift.

New York, Nov. 29.—Officers of the congressional union for women suffrage are wondering how they can best make use of $1,000 contributed by Mrs. H. O. P. Belmont for the express purpose of "converting" President Wilson to the support of a proposed suffrage amendment to the federal constitution. "The president has said he believes woman suffrage a good thing for New Jersey," Mrs. Belmont said. "We must keep at him now until he says it is a good thing for the whole country." Mrs. Belmont also advocates expenditure of suffrage funds to induce southern congressmen to support the federal amendment.

The congressional union has received a contribution of $100 to "convert" Elihu Root, who was one of their strongest opponents in the recent campaign in New York.

NO JOBS AT PANAMA.

Canal Block No Warrant for Influx of Americans.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Blocking of the Panama canal by earth slides has not created new work for Americans in the canal zone, and the canal office at Washington issued a statement in an effort to counteract published reports which have drawn many Americans to the isthmus in search of employment.

"Gen Goethals indicates," the statement says, "that the number of men continually being laid off on account of reduction of force is in excess of the vacancies which were temporarily created by the work of the slides, and the influx of men looking for employment on the isthmus is entirely unwarranted."

REJECT OFFER OF STATUE.

San Francisco Doesn't Want Religious Subjects in Her Parks.

San Francisco, Nov. 29.—"Christianity emerging from Paganism," Rafaelo Bonanelli's marble figure of the Christ, now in the garden of the Italian building at the Panama-Pacific exposition, was refused, it was announced Saturday, by the park commissioners as a gift to the city of San Francisco on the ground that the subject, being a religious one, was not acceptable for display in a public park. Mr. Bonanelli offered the statue to the city to cover the cost of transportation and the cost of the statue, which was paid. The amount was promptly raised by a committee of women, and the sculptor's offer submitted to the commission.

CHASE WILD BOARS.

Hunters Find Animals' Lair in Wilmot, N. H.

Potter Place, N. H., Nov. 29.—While Edgar Sargent and Maurice Sargent were hunting on Mica hill, in Wilmot, recently, they started two wild boars, each weighing about 200 pounds. Chase was given by the Sargents but the boars escaped. The hunters found their lair on the hill about 30 square feet of ground being uprooted.

Other wild boars have been reported on Ragged mountain in Andover, and in Gratwick. The animals are thought to have escaped from Corbin's park in the town of Croyden.

FOOTBALL DEATHS 16.

Fatalities are Among Untrained Players For Most Part.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Sixteen deaths resulted from football during the 1915 season which closed Saturday, according to Chicago sporting statistician. Last year the number of deaths due to the game was one less. The same authority added that in most cases the fatalities were among high school, semi-professional and prairie eleven, where little or no system of training prevailed.

What is Italy Doing?

The war front of which least is heard in America is the one upon which the most remarkable exploits are being performed. When Austria imposed the frontier line upon Italy in 1866 her engineers had studied every mile of the Alpine country over which they stretched the tortuous zigzag which now constitutes the boundary. Tyrol has a series of valleys all opening towards Italy, but the heights dominating the valleys all have been for half a century in the hands of the Austrians. Austrian engineers should their way into northern Italy, would have to overcome the steep and rugged hills overlooking the streams and lakes, dizzy cliffs command the passes; the Italians are slowly forcing their way along through a country tilted to a steep angle, cleft with gullies and rent by barren peaks. Some day a thrilling story will be told of the struggle in the Alps, a story, suggested in some of its details by the photographs which we have published showing the solitary watchtowers on the icy summits, the Alpine rolling tracks and avalanches down upon their adversaries, the indomitable mountaineers bending their way with hatchet footstep step by step towards the enemy trenches. The Italian army is fighting not with rifles but largely with the bayonet and hand-grenades. The Italians are showing marvellous ingenuity in holding by guns and quantities of sticks late places held by the Austrians to be inaccessible. No wonder progress is slow; every ridge and peak must be taken before a central force can be won, and the Austrians have the great advantage of defensive position. But slowly the Italians are creeping on, and if important gains ultimately come to them it will be by the "Tomb Raider" style, and the great thrusts against the troops who are striving to conquer "unconquered Italy."—Boston Herald.

RESENTS THE CHARGES

German Embassy Protest Talk Against Capt. Boy-Ed

MAY EVEN DEMAND APOLOGY

Claim That Accusations in Hamburg-American Trial Are Not Justified

Washington, Nov. 29.—The German embassy, according to information from an authoritative source, resents the accusations which are understood to have been made against Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, German naval attaché, in the trial in federal court at New York of officials of the Hamburg-American line. It was said Ambassador Von Bernstorff was preparing to file a vigorous complaint with the state department at the conclusion of the trial, asking at least for something in the nature of a retraction, and possibly for an apology.

The German embassy, it is understood, has not yet decided just what form the protest will take. A copy of the stenographic report of the remarks of counsel for the government and the testimony given at the trial is understood to have been ordered from New York, so that officials of the embassy may know exactly what has been said in the courtroom.

The embassy is particularly anxious to determine whether Capt. Boy-Ed was included by inference or otherwise in the reference made by United States Assistant District Attorney Wood to the defendants in the case as "riding rough shod over the laws of the United States, treating them as if they were scraps of paper."

It was said by a person in close touch with officials of the embassy that it was felt that Capt. Boy-Ed had been very harshly treated in the circumstances, and that too much had been made out of his connection with the case. The embassy was further described as feeling that Capt. Boy-Ed had done nothing that, under the law, he did not have a perfect right to do, and that, all things considered, he had done no more than naval attachés of embassies of the entente allies.

As to the form of the embassy's protest, it was said, much depended on the outcome of the trial. Should an acquittal result, the embassy might feel that in making complaint it would stand on much firmer ground, as it could point out, incidentally, that the defendants had themselves been freed of the charges made by the government. Whether they are acquitted or not, however, the belief prevails in German circles that Capt. Boy-Ed's name was needlessly brought in, and that needless things were said about him.

It is known that Secretary Lansing himself has for several days considered it probable that the German ambassador would make a protest. The state department takes the position that the disbarment of funds did not mean that the naval attaché had done anything illegal.

The department has complete knowledge of all the evidence which was secured in the case by the department of justice, and the stated position of Secretary Lansing is that nothing that may be done by the department of justice in developing its cases binds the state department to require the withdrawal of any diplomatic officer. It even has been hinted that state department officials are at a loss to understand why the German naval attaché was brought into the case unless there was evidence that he directed the alleged falsification of manifests and clearance papers by officials of the Hamburg-American line. It is understood that the belief in German circles is that, if there was any falsification of papers, it must have been the result of an effort to prevent the enemies of Germany from securing information which might cause harm to come to her forces and ships.

GETTING READY FOR CHICAGO.

Senator Weeks Hires Entire Hotel Floor for G. O. P. Convention.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Hotel reservations for Republican delegations from nine states have been made here it became known Saturday, in anticipation that the 1916 Republican national convention will be awarded to Chicago. United States Senator Weeks of Massachusetts reserved an entire floor for the Massachusetts delegation, a suite for himself and a suite for former Senator W. Murray Crane. New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota and Iowa are among the states for which reservations have been made.

Individual reservations include the names of former Vice-Pres. Charles W. Fairbanks, Myron T. Herrick of Illinois, Representative James E. Mann of Illinois and members of the Indiana state central committee. Republican national committee men will meet in Washington Dec. 14 to decide where the party's convention is to be held.

TWO MILES IN PARACHUTE.

British Aviator Drops 10,000 Feet in 25 Minutes.

London, Nov. 29.—Col. Maitland of the royal naval air service jumped with a parachute Saturday from an aeroplanes which was 10,000 feet in the air. He landed safely. Col. Maitland has been experimenting with projected developments of the aerial service and arrived at the point where it was necessary to determine whether an aviator could land safely by parachute from such a height. "Someone has to do it," he said. "There is only one person I care to ask. I will make the attempt myself." It took the colonel 15 minutes to make the descent, but he solved his problem satisfactorily.

DROWNS THROUGH ICE.

First Victim of Season at Andover, N. H.

Franklin, N. H., Nov. 29.—Thin ice claimed its first victim in this section Saturday, Daniel Fitzgerald, aged 18, of Andover, drowning in Bradley lake in sight of his home.

He and his 16-year-old brother, Maurice, had been chopping on a lot across the lake and were returning home. Maurice was walking ahead when he heard his brother cry for help. He rushed back, but was unable to rescue Daniel and came near drowning himself. He managed to keep afloat until a boat was secured and he was saved by neighbors.

The young men are sons of James E. Fitzgerald. Daniel formerly attended Franklin high school and played on the football team.

FEDERAL QUARANTINE OFF.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Federal quarantine for foot-and-mouth disease has been lifted entirely from Massachusetts and New Jersey and modified in a number of counties in Illinois by an order effective Saturday.

IF—?

If Germany had awaited attack from Russia and from France; if at the outset it had held itself on the defensive against France, alike with its navy (as the German ambassador in London himself suggested) and with its land forces; if it had respected the neutrality of Luxemburg and of Belgium—on what ground could England have based a declaration of war? It is of course true that for centuries it has been England's policy to maintain the balance of power in Europe, and that it has repeatedly supported continental coalitions against any state that threatened to dominate the continent, particularly if that state was developing sea-power. It is arguable that England has supported France and Russia in the present war, no matter who began it, it would have lost a promising chance to check the growth of German sea-power and might, within a few years, have had to defend itself single-handed against the attack of a Germany flushed with victory and stronger than in 1914. It is on this cui bono line of reasoning that German writers base their assumption that the British government must have been the instigator of the war.

There is no matter what Germany did or refrained from doing. There is, however, no direct evidence that even tends to support this assumption. On the other hand, evidence has been accumulating since the outbreak of the war, that if there was (as there well may have been) a war party in the cabinet, it was in a minority until August 2, and that even then there was no majority for full intervention, on land as well as at sea, until Germany invaded Belgium. It is indeed conceivable that the government in power in August, 1914, pledged to take no part in any aggressive movement against Germany, preoccupied with far-reaching plans of social reform, embarrassed by the prospect of civil war in Ireland, could have proposed a war to preserve the balance of power on land and to secure British predominance on the seas? We must not forget that, as the situation actually developed, and in spite of Germany's aggressive conduct, two members of the cabinet chose to resign rather than support intervention. And if, in the situation supposed, the cabinet had decided upon intervention, could it have obtained the support of the House of Commons? Would house rulers, Radicals and Labor members, who constituted so large a part of its following, have agreed to the measures which they had most at heart should be shelved during the continuance of such a war? Would it not have occurred to them that these measures might be held up for years afterward, on the ground that the necessity of financing an enormous war debt made it impossible to put them into operation?

Had Germany pursued the course above outlined, it seems certain that it could have counted upon British neutrality, at least until Russia had been forced to come to terms and France was in danger of being crushed.—Maurice Smith, in the North American Review.

A Historical Controversy.

Historical controversies are creeping into the schools. In a New York public institution, attended by many races, during an examination in history, the teacher asked a little boy who discovered America.

He was evidently thrown into a panic and hesitated, much to the teacher's surprise, to make any reply.

"Oh, please, ma'am," he finally stammered, "ask me something else."

"Something else, Jimmy? Why should I do that?"

"The fellow was talkin' 'bout it yesterday," replied Jimmy. "Tut tut! and he was discovered by an Irish saint. Ouf! he said it was a sailor from Norway, and Giovanni said it was Columbus, or if you'd ask me what happened you couldn't ask a little fellow like me!"—Kansas City Star.

Greene and Preparedness.

Congressman Frank L. Greene of Vermont is doing some efficient work for the promotion of national preparedness—which reminds us that we always found Colonel Greene prepared for anything, from fight to frolic, when he was editor of the St. Albans Messenger.—Manchester Union.

High Power Rifles.

There are people who believe that the next legislature of Vermont would confer a great blessing should such a body make it a law that high power rifles could not be used in the state for hunting purposes.

At the present time it is not an uncommon sight to see people start for the woods with guns that will carry a bullet for a mile and then do execution. Our contention is that such weapons are dangerous and unnecessary. To hunt any kind of game in the state does not require that the hunter shall be armed with a rifle that is so deadly. Deer are easy animals to kill when once they are hit and it is seldom that one can be seen out of the range of the gun of ordinary power.

The woods are filled with hunters when the deer season starts and such a condition prevails as long as the season lasts. There are not more accidents resulting in the loss of life to human beings is a miracle.—Windsor Journal.

"An Act of God."

The officials of the Bethlehem steel works maintain that the fire was the result of an accident. The English press bureau places the blame on German "spies." Both are wrong. Once again Providence interposed on the side of the Germans. The fire at the Bethlehem murder plant restores one's faith in eternal justice. It was indeed an act of God.

Editor Viereck's religious ecstasy over the fire in Mr. Schwab's gun plant would alone justify the inquiry by the federal department of justice into the circumstances of the recent sensational event at Bethlehem, Pa. A fire is usually something for the local and state authorities to investigate, but whatever is done in seeking the sources of alleged incendiarism in munitions plants must evidently be directed from Washington.

Charges to the effect that an alien conspiracy exists to destroy munitions plants are not unfamiliar features in the newspapers, and in the arrest of the German subject, Fay, in New York, progress appeared to be made toward an exposure of the plotters. Thus far no very conclusive evidence has been presented to the public. But hints are appearing to the effect we are on the eve of real disclosures. These may deal particularly with passport frauds, but if such friends ever can be traced to foreign consular officials in this country the government will presumably be hot on the trail of the real instigators and feeders of plots to destroy legitimate American industries. The grand jury in New York is expected to take action next week that may interest the country.

It has been suggested that the federal government, under the criminal laws of the United States, may have difficulty in convicting even those brought into court on specific charges; and far more difficult may be the task of bringing those "higher up" to justice. In these circumstances, the moral conviction may be strong on the part of the department of justice that certain consular officials may have been engaged in activities prejudicial to our national welfare; even diplomatic officers of inferior rank, representing foreign governments, may be under the strongest kind of suspicion. May not such officials, it is asked, be adequately dealt with by the simple means of sending them home. No charges need be made against them. The alleged conspiracy might not be scotched by such action, but at least the government of the United States would show that it is on its job.

If explanations were desired, President Wilson might adopt Editor Viereck's manner and say that showing the door to suspected consuls and diplomats was "an act of God."—Springfield Republican.

Serbia's Struggle.

It would have been a glorious triumph for Serbia if she had been able to force the German, Austrian and Hungarian armies back across the Danube, the Save and the Drina, just as she drove out the Austro-Hungarian invaders in the five months' campaign which ended last December. But the course of events seems to indicate that in the present campaign

GLASS OF WATER BEFORE YOU EAT ANY BREAKFAST

Wash Poison from System Each Morning and Feel Fresh as a Daisy

Every day you clean the house you live in to get rid of the dust and dirt which collected through the previous day. Your body, the house your soul lives in, also becomes filled up each 24 hours with all manner of filth and poison. If only every man and woman could realize the wonders of drinking phosphated hot water, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists, we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

Everyone, whether sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the waste of the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the 30 feet of bowels do.—Adv.

he is more likely to be the victim of a ghastly tragedy, not only because German power has been added to the attack, but mainly because of her being stabbed in the back by the vindictive king of the Bulgarians. It is possible that Serbia could have held all her assaults on the north and west at bay for months, compelling them ultimately to withdraw their invading force for service at other points more dangerous to themselves, if only the quadruple entente had sent in time a sufficient army to parry the Bulgarian assault on the Serbian right and rear. But France's trifling 40,000 and Britain's paltry 13,000 form a force of farcical inferiority to fight Bulgaria.

The Kaiser's puppet on the throne of Greece has dropped aside into the constitutional machinery which ought to have translated the treaty of alliance with Serbia into armed action, and the German king at Bucharest has thus far checked the efforts of Take Jonsescu, the liberty-loving leader of Rumanian patriots, to cause his country to strike for Serbian freedom. Then why has Russia sent no better aid than a field battery and a cruiser, and why has Italy given no aid whatever? As for the latter, so far as is known, she has as yet done nothing but fight for her own hand against Austria, taking particular care not to send a ship or a man where shots would have to be exchanged with Germany or Turkey. Italy sticks to a little war of her own within the war. But the failure of Russia to send her dreadnoughts and cruisers down from Sebastopol to pound to powder the Bulgarian forts at Varna and Burgas, with transports to land a great army from Odessa, is incomprehensible in view of promises that have been made.

May we hope that Russia, France and Britain are really dispatching large forces to the aid of Serbia under cover of the parliamentary talk and censored communications which tend to create the impression that all that is possible has been done? Russian relief forces were reported ready a week ago. A Franco-British army was said to have landed on Oct. 17 at Enos, where it could strike at both Bulgaria and Turkey. Serbian headquarters alleged a promise of an allied force strong enough to take the offensive in the Vardar valley on Oct. 29. It will be strange if all these things come to nothing. Serbia alone cannot maintain the struggle very long. Unless she is strongly aided, it will mean her annihilation. The Serbian republic, Napoleon's Old Guard, may die, but they will never surrender. Let us hope that help is on the way, with silence concealing it from the enemy.—Boston Herald.
